

Slackware creator in strife, claims store has not paid him

By Roy Schestowitz

Created 25/07/2018 - 1:09am

Submitted by Roy Schestowitz on Wednesday 25th of July 2018 01:09:54 AM Filed under Slack [1]

The creator of the second oldest Linux distribution, Patrick Volkerding, claims he is in financial strife after the store, with which he reached an agreement to sell his work, stopped paying him two years ago.

In a post to the Linux Questions website, Volkerding, a hero to many early adopters of Linux, said that the store was set up as a 60:40 venture.

"And 60% seemed fair, since the idea was that the company would be providing health insurance, paying for the production of the goods, and handling shipping and related customer service," he wrote.

[2]

Slack

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/113860>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/113>

[2] <https://www.itwire.com/open-source/83757-slackware-creator-in-strife,-claims-store-has-not-paid-him.html>