"ChoicePoint, under fire for being duped into allowing criminals to access its massive database of personal information, said yesterday that consumers in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and three U.S. territories may have been affected by the breach of the company's credentialing process."

"The company said the smallest number of possible victims ? two ? was in the U.S. Virgin Islands, while the largest number ? 34,114 ? was in California."

Full Story [2].