As we stand, we're between the February release of WordPress 5.1 "Betty," and the impending release of WordPress 5.2, which is now in beta, and features an update to the WordPress block editor.

But in the meantime, Automattic and the WordPress community have news to celebrate, according to W3Techs, WordPress now powers over one-third of the top 10 million sites on the web. WordPress? Joost de Valk remarked that the company?s market share ?has been growing steadily over the last few years, going from 29.9 percent just one year ago to 33.4 percent now.?
