There are plenty of reasons you might need to record your screen. Maybe you're a developer looking to demonstrate an app you built. Perhaps you're looking to do an instructional screencast. You might just want to show a family member how to do something.

You have plenty of choices when it comes to which screen recorder to use on Ubuntu. Some are simple to use, while others are more complicated but have additional features. It also depends on whether you prefer a GUI or the command line.
