Countdown Timer App for Ubuntu

By Roy Schestowitz
Created 08/05/2021 - 12:39am
Submitted by Roy Schestowitz on Saturday 8th of May 2021 12:39:47 AM Filed under Software [1]

If you are looking to manage your time better – whether to set aside a study period or time that pizza you put in the oven – look no further as we have for you the best countdown timer apps you can get on your Ubuntu setup. There are many options out there to choose from, so we will list the best ones and let you decide which strikes your fancy!

Using GNOME Clocks

If you prefer using a GUI app to help you keep track of your time, GNOME Clocks is the program. It comes with many convenient features that allow you to set a timer or an alarm and use the stopwatch. The installation process is easy, as you will see since GNOME Clocks is available on SnapStore.

If your version Ubuntu does not have snap installed by default, run the following command to get it running on your system first.

[2]
Links: