Entroware Proteus is a Linux Laptop for Getting Things Done

By Rianne Schestowitz
Created 21/05/2021 - 12:44pm
Not wanting to be left out is UK-based computer company Entroware, who have just unveiled their latest Ubuntu laptop. And it’s packs some big tech inside.

Say hello to the Entroware Proteus.

The Entroware Proteus is a 15.6-inch laptop packing a whopping 73 Wh battery. Even used at full tilt, this laptop isn’t going to need recharging as often as other 15-inch workstations, meaning users can get more done, with fewer adapter-related interruptions.

Also: Entroware bring the Proteus Linux laptop with Intel Xe, a big screen and long battery life long-battery-life