For 35 years, Stuart worked as a System programmer for a small company where his projects included database servers, device drivers, protocol stacks, expert systems, accounting systems, aged AR/AP reports, and EDI. Currently, he is doing hourly consulting work for small businesses.

Stuart's childhood heroes were his Dad and George Müller. His favorite movies are "The Gods must be crazy" and "The mission". He grew up in a pacifist denomination, so feels "The mission" movie is very relevant to him. He loves over roasted vegetables.

Composing and performing music, Mesh networking, and refurbishing discarded computers to run Fedora Linux are some of his spare time interests as well as history, especially ancient Western and 19th century English/American.

?Love/charity, Hope, Faith, Virtue, and knowledge? are the five qualities someone should possess, according to Stuart.
