

Software: Matrix, Ktube, and Monero P2Pool

By Roy Schestowitz

Created 22/09/2021 - 3:43pm

Submitted by Roy Schestowitz on Wednesday 22nd of September 2021 03:43:15 PM Filed under Software [1]

- Chat Bubbles on Element and Several Matrix Apps [2]

This simple comparison wants to help everyone adopt alternative messaging technology, Matrix, with suitable user interface to them. We call Matrix Apps to instant messengers like Element, Fluffy, Nheko, Schildi and Spectral as they are created based upon the said technology. We will start by setting up criteria first that includes chat bubbles, then going through these messengers one by one, and you will see their pictures here along with a little comments from me. I hope you can pick up the messenger with UI you love the most from here.

- Ktube Media Downloader lets you download YouTube videos easily on Linux [3]

I always like to tell people about how I have been using Linux as my primary operating system for over ten years. I love Linux, I understand it, it's free and above all, it fits my workflow in a way Microsoft's Windows (with all its goodness) probably never will. That also means I love and am a command-line ninja but I also know one thing, a lot of people out there fear and hate the command line.

- Monero P2Pool V1.0 Is Released [4]

The latest version of P2Pool, a decentralized Monero mining pool has released. This is the first official release, signaling an invitation for more users to try out the new software.

Software

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/155950>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/38>

[2] <https://www.ubuntubuzz.com/2021/09/chat-bubbles-on-element-and-several-matrix-apps.html>

[3] <https://www.techzim.co.zw/2021/09/ktube-media-downloader-lets-you-download-youtube-videos-easily-on-linux/>

[4] https://linuxreviews.org/Monero_P2Pool_V1.0_Is_Released