- Yikes, tough crowd: Only 30% of German-speaking users are happy with SAP's cloud push ? The Register [2]

Less than a third of German-speaking SAP users think the global application vendor is doing a good job of getting its software to work in the cloud.

The survey from user group DSAG, which represents those in Germany, Austria and Switzerland, showed that only 30 per cent of members have had good experiences with SAP in the cloud. The figure for use of non-SAP software was around 60 per cent.

- September 30, 2021, is the day the Internet is disabled for millions of smartphones and computers [6]

Millions of smartphones, game consoles and computers will lose their Internet access by September 30, 2021, as the security certificate on all connected products expires. This applies to all devices marketed and not updated before 2017.

Smartphones, Computers, Tablets, But game consoles and televisions ? the Internet has been everywhere for years. But still, on September 30, 2021, millions of devices may lose connectivity! A giant "blackout" affecting a large number of devices designed before 2017. Why? Because this September 30, 2021, a Certificate Digital security is about to expire, and the lack of an update will prevent another certificate from becoming too widespread to connect to the Internet today, for example watching videos or viewing emails.
