Containers are highly beneficial for software development, deployment, and management in a virtual environment. Docker is useful in the containerization process, but it's not the only platform around. If you're searching for some alternatives to Docker, look no further. This list showcases some feature-rich and efficient Docker alternatives to use in your next project.

[2]

Source URL: http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/157654

Links: