This week the new KWin Overview effect gained the ability to shows results from KRunner when you search! This brings it fairly close to feature parity with GNOME?s central Activities Overview feature!

Keep in mind that this blog only covers the tip of the iceberg! Tons of KDE apps whose development I don?t have time to follow aren?t represented here, and I also don?t mention backend refactoring, improved test coverage, and other changes that are generally not user-facing. If you?re hungry for more, check out https://planet.kde.org/, where you can find blog posts by other KDE contributors detailing the work they?re doing.
