

Microsoft to Begin Shipping Windows Ubuntu

By srlinuxx

Created 03/05/2007 - 3:57pm

Submitted by srlinuxx on Thursday 3rd of May 2007 03:57:01 PM Filed under Humor [1]

Software giant Microsoft announced yesterday that it will begin shipping its newest operating system, Windows Linux Ubuntu, by the end of this month. Computers sold with this free, open-source operating system pre-installed will cost, on average, $149.95 fewer than computers sold with Windows Vista Service Pack 9 pre-installed.

Microsoft's announcement caught computer-industry analysts by surprise.

"We're normally used to waiting three or four years and two or three delays before Microsoft releases a new operating system," said Louis Chuptka of PC Age magazine. "For Microsoft to release a new operating system before hackers have exposed all the vulnerabilities in the previous one is a revolutionary step."

To Microsoft, however, the decision was a no-brainer.

Read More [2].

Humor

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/15998>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/104>

[2] http://www.pugbus.net/artman/publish/05037002_11_windowsubuntu.shtml