Only packages that were generated by the RBE or retrieved from the Official Git Repository are displayed in the following table.

They are separated into groups based on their category (Base, Device Drivers, etc.).

The first column (Retrieved from Repository) lists the package ID. It is immediately followed with some basic information on the package. This includes the approximate compressed size of the package and if it is part of either the BASE or FULL package set.

The additional columns denote the presence of the package on that specific media. They are color coded for the type of install.
