

Concerns About Open Source "Zealots"

By srlinuxx

Created 01/03/2005 - 6:23pm

Submitted by srlinuxx on Tuesday 1st of March 2005 06:23:50 PM Filed under OSS [1]

"Speaking live on SYS-CON.TV, Linux Business Week editor-in-chief Maureen O'Gara talked with SYS-CON Media West Coast bureau chief Roger Strukhoff about a variety of issues, including zealotry and what she interprets as the "anti-capitalist" overtones of the open source movement."

"Open source is not unique in treating itself as almost a religion," O'Gara said, "We have a lot of zealots as far as open source goes, and the unpleasant side of that is that they have created a community of people who do not tolerate opposing positions."

Full story [2], and beware of the embedded streaming interview. You may want to turn down you speakers. 🗣️

OSS

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/164>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/72>

[2] <http://www.linuxbusinessweek.com/story/48404.htm>