

Using Gmail to...

By srlinuxx

Created 17/10/2005 - 12:50am

Submitted by srlinuxx on Monday 17th of October 2005 12:50:50 AM Filed under HowTos [1]

Gmail's popularity, enormous storage, search capability, and labels, means that many people have been hacking new uses for the application. This feature looks at some of the more unusual uses that people are putting the system to.

Using Gmail as To-Do List

Around the same time as Gmail was launched, the tech world spawned a fashion for being really, really, organized. To-do lists are stylish accessory for any self-respecting geek, and, of course, Gmail can be fashioned into a fine tool for such things.

Using Filters

The first way of making to-do lists is to use plus addresses and filters. The plus address feature, as you'll remember from our previous Gmail feature, is the one where you can add a plus sign (+) and then any string to your gmail address without it making any difference. For example:

Full Article [2].

HowTos

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/3088>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/98>

[2] <http://www.extremetech.com/article2/0,1697,1871092,00.asp>