I have mentioned a lot of console applications over the past few weeks, but usually either in conjunction with screen-vs, or with something running under X, like Musca.

There is a middle ground, so to speak. twin, when used in conjunction with gpm, makes for a kind of terminal window manager (hence the name ?t-win? ? not ?twin?) complete with its own onboard emulator, resizable windows, overlapping and layered frames, shadow effects, color combinations, and so on.
