

Ubuntu User On Fedora 12: Using It And Liking It

By srlinuxx

Created 27/11/2009 - 1:18am

Submitted by srlinuxx on Friday 27th of November 2009 01:18:25 AM Filed under Linux [1]

I have been a full time Ubuntu user since 2006. Before that I tried to like it, but couldn't. I moved to it out of necessity when MEPIS began to play around with it core, switching from Debian to Ubuntu and back in six months. It was a fun ride, but it was not what I was interested in. Ubuntu was my only viable choice. It took time for it to grow on me. In a sense we have grown together.

When the Ubuntu 9.10 alpha came out I installed it on a separate partition while using Ubuntu 9.04 on another partition as my main OS. I am active on several help forums, problem solving mostly Ubuntu and Kubuntu problems. I run Ubuntu from alpha to final. I report bugs and watch it grow into maturity with pride. I spread the word and help others with problems. I have been a faithful user in every sense of the word.

I am at the same time a Fedora resister. I began with Mandrake and lived in RPM hell for two years. Yes, RPM has matured, but I have a well established hatred of that package management system. I tried Fedora's first few releases, but they left me cold. I have tried each release of Fedora since, but it has continued to rub me the wrong way.

Until recently. [2]

Linux

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/41411>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/63>

[2] <http://linuxcanuck.wordpress.com/2009/11/26/fedora-12-using-it-and-liking-it/>