

Interview with Stormy Peters of The GNOME Foundation

By srlinuxx

Created 27/08/2010 - 4:59pm

Submitted by srlinuxx on Friday 27th of August 2010 04:59:38 PM Filed under Interviews [1]

In this interview I chat with Stormy Peters about GNOME, Ubuntu and more. I had the opportunity to ask Stormy for an interview during a brief conversation at OSCON earlier this year. Stormy like most people at OSCON had a pretty full schedule and wasn't able to participate in this impromptu request. However, I did ask if I could send her a few questions for an interview to be published on this blog and I am really glad she agreed. Below are Stormy's answers. So without further delay --

Introducing Stormy Peters. Stormy Thank you so much for taking time to answer my questions and let people know more about the GNOME Foundation and Project.

Stormy Peters: My name is Stormy Peters. I've been the Executive Director of the GNOME Foundation for a little over two years now. My job is to make sure that the GNOME Foundation is successful in its mission to provide a free desktop accessible to everyone regardless of finances, physical ability or language they speak. We do that by supporting the GNOME project and developers.

I work with our downstream partners, our advisory board members, our marketing team, ... I work on fundraising, outreach, etc.

AG: How long have you been involved with Free and Open Source Software? What was your first distribution, when and why?

Rest Here [2]

Interviews

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/47385>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/119>

[2] <http://www.ubuntu-user.com/Online/Blogs/Amber-Graner-You-in-Ubuntu/Amber-Graner-chats-with-Stormy-Peters-Executive-Director-of-The-GNOME-Foundation>