

Now Powered by Simply MEPIS 11

By srlinuxx

Created 02/07/2011 - 1:00pm

Submitted by srlinuxx on Saturday 2nd of July 2011 01:00:54 PM Filed under Linux [1]

I wanted to keep trying out KDE, but also to escape an Ubuntu base and the instability it brings (at least in my experience, yours may very well be different). This left me with many options. Fedora, Mandriva, PCLinuxOS, OpenSuse, Sabayon, Calculate and Salix all offer KDE desktops, among others. MEPIS, Chakra and Pardus are also great devoted KDE distributions. Still, I wanted stability without losing the package variety I am accustomed to from Ubuntu so I opted for the only Debian stable based distro out of those, MEPIS 11.

So, having installed MEPIS I was digging around their wiki for lack of anything else to do and found, to my delight, that MEPIS has a community repository. That allows me to easily get some software, such as my favorite music manager and qt application Clementine.

rest here [2]

Linux

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/53532>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/63>

[2] <http://linuxmoose.wordpress.com/2011/07/02/now-powered-by-simply-mepis-11/>