Well, my experiment with G+ and social networking has come to its end tonight.

I admit to always being a bit suspicious of SUPER-MEGA CORP Google. However, my suspicions were just that? suspicions. That is until I came to G+ and witnessed how a large corporate entity once again wipes its anal orifice with anything the little guy has to say when it doesn?t correspond with their business plan.

Privacy is a very important thing, folks. It?s important in your real lives and it?s important (possibly more so) here in this medium.
