Today we have the chance to interview SUSE's Frederic Crozat, who's responsible for systemd in openSUSE.

Nickname: fcrozat

Blog: <http://blog.crozat.net/>

Favorite season: Winter (I love to take pictures of landscapes / trees under the snow)

My name is Frédéric Crozat, I'm 36 and I live in Paris (France). I'm working for SUSE for a little more than a year, with focus on various topics such as SUSE MeeGo, GNOME 3 live image, LXC (Linux Containers) and more recently, systemd.. Before that, I worked for 10 years at MandrakeSoft/Mandriva, taking care of GNOME. From 2002 to 2011, I was part of GNOME Release Team, making sure GNOME was released on time and with all those nice features.
