It's not just teenage girls who are swept away by ?bieber fever?, apparently Linux, the open-source operating system is the newest entrant to the overflowing list of believers. Just two days since its launch, Justin Bieber Linux, more popularly known as Biebian, has taken the open-source community by storm. One-upping Ubuntu and Linux Mint in just a few hours, Biebian has given Linux the popularity and exposure it had been waiting for for years. Though some are scoffing at Biebian's incredible success, many Linux supporters are basking in the glory of the newfound fame of their favorite operating system.

30-year-old Tim Freeberg couldn't believe his eyes when he saw Biebian topping the charts on Distrowatch.
