

These Are The Biggest Blessings With GNU/Linux

By srlinuxx

Created 17/06/2012 - 8:21pm

Submitted by srlinuxx on Sunday 17th of June 2012 08:21:22 PM Filed under Linux [1]

Once again a supposed fan of FLOSS trumpets an attack-piece listing the many flaws of GNU/Linux while completely getting it wrong. The first item, hardware support, for instance, is clearly wrong. GNU/Linux supports far more hardware out of the box than that other OS. That you can move a disc-image from one random machine to another and get it working instantly is proof of that. That's almost impossible with that other OS.

So, GNU/Linux is the worst system for IT imaginable, except for all the others? GNU/Linux is not perfect but it has very few problems beyond exclusion from retail shelves, a deliberate plot by M$'s sales-droids.

Some of the blessings, not in any particular order: [2]

Linux

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/57811>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/63>

[2] <http://mrpogson.com/2012/06/17/these-are-the-biggest-blessings-with-gnulinux/>