The Document Foundation today announced the latest stable release of popular free office suite, LibreOffice 3.6.2. This release bring lots of bug and regression fixes. Yeah, the changelog is long and boring, but it adds up to improved stability for LibreOffice users - which is always a good thing.

The release announcement highlighted the ever increasing adoptions of LibreOffice. One specific example is the city of Limerick, Ireland; which moved 450 desktops to LibreOffice at several libraries, the fire department, and the city's museum and art gallery.
