

Ladies and Gentlemen, SCO v. IBM Is Officially Reopened

By srlinuxx

Created 16/06/2013 - 6:16am

Submitted by srlinuxx on Sunday 16th of June 2013 06:16:47 AM Filed under Legal [1]

The Hon. David Nuffer has ruled on the SCO v. IBM motions, granting SCO's motion for reconsideration and reopening the case, which IBM did not object to. Judge Nuffer apologizes to the parties for the error in his previous order refusing to reopen the case. Sounds like a mensch to me. I love it when judges don't pretend something is the lawyers' fault when it's really the judge's fault. He's newly assigned to this case, and it's been going on for over a decade, so he specifically tells the parties not to assume his familiarity, asking them to provide him with enough detail in the various briefs going forward to work with. And he has essentially accepted the IBM suggestions on how to go forward, which SCO did not want to happen. I was fairly confident he would, though, precisely because he's new and he surely needs some time and help from the parties to get up to speed. So it's going to go like this:

rest here [2]

Legal

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/60580>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/106>

[2] <http://www.groklaw.net/article.php?story=2013061516065416>