Sometimes I'm sitting here, trying to come up with something to write and I'm coming up dry. It's not because there's nothing going on with Linux. Quite the contrary. Linux is always moving, changing. It's hard to believe just how ubiquitous Linux is. It's literally everywhere.

The Obvious

Of course, there's the obvious places you can find Linux. Android phones, the Internet, and of course super computers. Linux has long dominated those markets, and everybody is pretty much aware of that fact.

The Not So Obvious

Some of the other areas that you can find Linux are pretty amazing. Just check out some of these:
