

Is Nokia Really Dying?

By Rianne Schestowitz

Created 30/04/2014 - 11:16am

Submitted by Rianne Schestowitz on Wednesday 30th of April 2014 11:16:32 AM Filed under Reviews [1]

It was almost two months ago that I wrote about Nokia's most-awaited comeback, for the new designs and innovation of their mobile phones, but it did not happen. In fact, Nokia's ordeal became worse because Nokia is dying. Yes! Nokia is dying as Microsoft once again used their power 'trick' to get a stranglehold on the most influential and trusted company when it comes to innovation and technology. No matter what changes and what Microsoft is doing, there will be no difference. Chances are, only the features and profiles have changed, but the personal interest and infrastructure most likely are the same or even worse than that. Now Nokia has become the new platform of surveillance, it will never be the same again. The trust has been tarnished, the public has become more aware of Microsoft's anomalies and all sorts of devil's advocate games. Doing business with Microsoft is a big mistake. Take Nokia's example. I hope Android and Tizen will not consider deals or any tie-ups with Microsoft, and to all the rest who support and advocate open source, rest assured that FOSS will prevail. ?

Reviews

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/65374>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/57>