

Android TV Arrives With New Game Boxes, 4K TVs

By Rianne Schestowitz

Created 07/05/2015 - 9:36pm

Submitted by Rianne Schestowitz on Thursday 7th of May 2015 09:36:34 PM Filed under Android [1]

The choice of Android TV devices has finally expanded beyond Google's Nexus Player. Last week, Sony, which years ago launched the first Google TV set-top, began shipping the first Android TV based TVs, and this week it will be joined by Razer's Forge TV gaming player. Later this month, Nvidia will ship its third-generation Nvidia Shield, which similarly runs Google's new media player and gaming platform.

In today's more enlightened tech world, failure is not exactly acceptable, but it is at least considered natural. Fail twice in the same product category, however, and few will give much credence to future attempts. The pressure is on for Google to see some early wins for Android TV that can erase memories of its failed Google TV integrated TV/web platform.

[2]

Android

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/75781>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/143>

[2] <http://www.linux.com/news/embedded-mobile/mobile-linux/828752-android-tv-arrives-with-new-game-boxes-4k-tvs/>