

SCO fails to mention IBM ruling to Red Hat Judge

By srlinuxx

Created 07/07/2006 - 12:46pm

Submitted by srlinuxx on Friday 7th of July 2006 12:46:12 PM Filed under Misc [1]

ANTI LINUX bad boy SCO seems to be a bit embarrassed about having most of its case against IBM chucked out.

Each 90 days the outfit has to pen a letter to the Judge in charge of a similar case against Red Hat and the latest edition almost fails to mention the fact.

The letter said that Judge Brooke Wells granted in part IBM's motion to limit SCO's claims. It failed to mention that Wells gutted most of SCO's case against Big Blue, nor did it tell the Red Hat judge about the implications.

Full Story [2].

Found Here [3].

Misc

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/8076>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/78>

[2] <http://www.groklaw.net/article.php?story=20060706213507842>

[3] <http://www.theinquirer.net/default.aspx?article=32869>