Ubuntu 16.04 LTS (Xenial Xerus) is still a month away from feature freeze and developers have plenty of time for some new features, but the distribution has already received a lot of attention already.

Canonical has been focused on Ubuntu Touch these past two years, so there hasn't been much activity on the desktop front. That's about to change as the Ubuntu developers have already implemented (or are planning) a huge number of new features, and some of them are really surprising.
