

Why 'Real Linux' users should support Linspire & Freespire

By srlinuxx

Created 09/09/2006 - 8:02pm

Submitted by srlinuxx on Saturday 9th of September 2006 08:02:02 PM Filed under Linux [1]

I guess the majority of people browsing Linux Forums are interested in computers, we like to know what makes them tick, we like to tweak them so they tick faster, and we especially like that ours tick differently to other people's. But there are a billion users out there who frankly don't give a damn.

They want their computer to do stuff for them, just like they want their car (automobile for US readers) to fetch groceries and take the kids to school, they want their PC to do on-line shopping and banking, send and receive mail, help the kids with their school work and provide a little entertainment.

These are all things they are prepared to pay for and are used to paying for, you buy a computer with Windows installed (or a Mac if you work in the media) and it does this stuff for you. Sure it's not perfect, but then everyone's computer crashes sometime.

Full Story [2].

Linux

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/9513>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/63>

[2] http://www.linuxforums.org/reviews/is_linspire_real_linux.html