

How to enable numlock at startup automatically in Gnome on CentOS?

By srlinuxx

Created 13/09/2006 - 7:08pm

Submitted by srlinuxx on Wednesday 13th of September 2006 07:08:42 PM Filed under HowTos [1]

CentOS is a great desktop, but unfortunately, the NUMLOCK key isn't enabled by default when you start your computer, which is annoying when you start typing numbers and you realise it doesn't work as expected. In a few simple steps we will solve this problem and NUMLOCK will be enabled when you start your computer.

First we need to install numlockx, a little neat utility. Open your terminal and issue:

Full Tip [2].

HowTos

---

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/9590>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/98>

[2] <http://www.osresources.com/index.php?action=artikel&cat=3&id=9&artlang=en>